My maize plants have brown leaf edges and appear stunted despite proper watering and fertilization. What might be causing this issue and what steps can I take to resolve it?

It sounds like your maize plants may have a nutrient deficiency, pest issue, or environmental stress. Check for proper soil nutrients, consistent watering, and signs of pests. Conduct a soil test and adjust fertilization accordingly.

Your maize plants might have a nutrient deficiency, pest problem, or stress from watering. Perform a soil test, ensure balanced fertilization, and inspect for pests. Adjust care as needed and consult an agricultural expert for further help.

I'm struggling with tomato plant growth; they seem stunted and the leaves are yellowing. I've tried adjusting watering and fertilization but no improvement. What could be causing this and how can I fix it?

My cow is sick; it has a loss of appetite, a drop in milk production, and seems lethargic. I've tried adjusting feed and hydration, but there's no improvement. What could be causing this and how can I treat it?
